On track to the top

EVERY rail commuter hears folk rockers Cattle & Cane belting out on a daily basis — they just don’t know it yet.

The band was picked by Boots & Bandit as their choice to break out of their comfort zone and embrace a new musical direction.

At 146,500 miles a year, commutingMgrs are exposed to music all day, every day, and they are being exposed to the very best in the business.

The group's latest album, 'Somewhere On The Moon', is the result of a collaborative effort between two young writers, Helen and Joe.

The album is about two people who are separated by a long distance, but who are still able to communicate and build a relationship through music.

The band's success story started when they entered the Boots & Bandit competition, and the judges were so impressed with their performance that they chose them as their winners.

Since then, they have been able to showcase their talent to the world and gain recognition for their unique sound and style.

Helen is the lead singer and is accompanied by Joe on acoustic and electric guitar. The band's sound is a blend of folk, country, and rock, with catchy hooks and powerful vocals.

Cattle & Cane are planning to tour the UK and Europe in the near future, and their performances are gaining popularity among rail commuters and music lovers alike.

The band's success is a testament to the power of music and its ability to bring people together and create a shared experience.
